LINCOLN, NE. — Nebraska's quick-strike offense settled the win-lose issue rather quickly, and a home-opening crowd of 76,016 settled back to watch Nebraska's nation-leading winning string swell to 12 and Mike Rozier make history. Wyoming was victim No. 2, 56-20.

Turner Gill established the pattern when he hit wingback Irving Fryar with an apparent 81-yard touchdown pass on the second play. The gain was held to 33 yards when it was ruled that Fryar had hit the sideline chalk. The Huskers continued on to complete the 82-yard march in eight plays and 3:10, with Mike Rozier scoring the first of his four touchdowns from the 4.

The Huskers did not waste so much time thereafter. Scoring on six of seven possessions in the first half, they put together scoring drives of 64 yards in 1:51, 9 yards in :35 after a Cowboy fumble, 78 yards in :47, 51 yards in 1:09 and 87 yards in 1:35. The score climbed to 42-0 before Wyoming kicked a field goal on the last play of the first half.

It was 49-3 and 56-10 with 2:53 left in the third quarter when Rozier retired with his fourth touchdown and 191 yards on 19 carries. His 13th carry, a 12-yard touchdown in the second quarter broke I.M. Hipp's career rushing record. Rozier finished the game with 2,894 yards in his career. Gill, who completed 9 of 13 passes, surpassed Jerry Tagge's 1969 record of consecutive passes without an interception, raising his total to 99, and he padded his school quarterback rushing record with 21 more.

The offense was at its devastating best in a three-play sequence en route to the fourth touchdown. Rozier opened the 78-play drive with a 15-yard reverse. Then Gill passed 14 yards over the middle to a leaping Scott Kimball. On the third play, Rozier swept right with a pitch, flipped the ball back to Gill, who passed deep down the right side to Fryar for a 49-yard touchdown.

It was the second half that left Coach Tom Osborne with the feeling his team hadn't reached perfection yet. His Blackshirt defense gave up a 17-play, 80-yard scoring drive, and the reserves let the Cowboys travel 82 yards in eight plays and gave up a safety in the fourth quarter.

Coach Osborne's Evaluation

'There were a lot of good things about (the game). I was kind of reacting to the fourth quarter, and I was probably a little more upset than I should have been.' Tom Osborne.

Head Coach Tom Osborne expressed some initial displeasure with his second-half defense after Wyoming scored 17 points. After viewing the films and putting the game in four-quarter perspective, things looked better.

"There were a lot of good things about (the game). I was kind of reacting to the fourth quarter, and I was probably a little more upset than I should have been. After looking at the film and realizing all that happened, I wasn't aware completely of all the people we had in there (84 players saw action). Substituting is done primarily by the assistant coaches.

"I think also that Wyoming did a good job of working at it. They didn't just totally give up, but when you have basically your third defense going against Wyoming's first offense, you're going to give up some yards, particularly since we didn't get lined up right on a few occasions, and we just didn't have a chance to stop them.

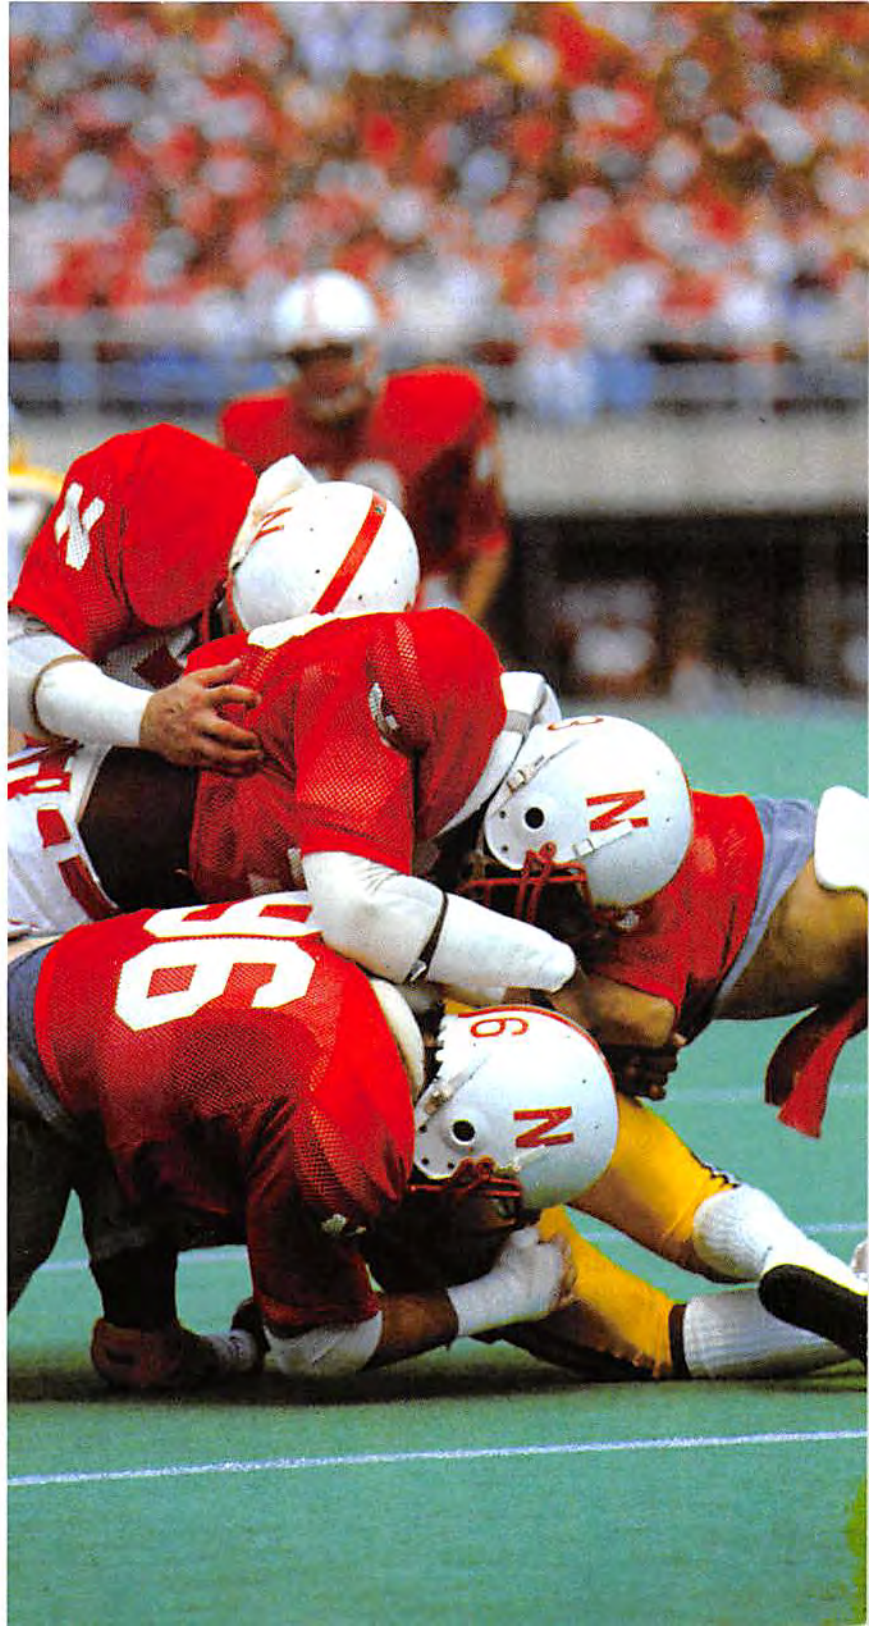

"We probably played our first units slightly more than half the game. I think some of the younger people on the second units did some good things and got some valuable experience.

"I thought we played awfully well the first half, and as long as the first offense was on the field, we looked good offensively. I was a little disappointed that they moved on our first defense in the third quarter like they did, but when you're ahead 49-3, it's kinda hard to maintain the intensity, although we'd hope they would do it.

"In the fourth quarter, most of the problems we had were because we had such a hodgepodge of players in there. We might have a first team player in there with a whole bunch of second and third teamers and even some fourth team players around him.

"We had a lot of players playing who really had not run our own offense or defense all week. They'd been on the scouting team. So that makes it very hard, particularly when you're playing a wishbone and you're calling defenses that aren't really standard defenses and coverages that aren't standard coverages. Some of those kids didn't even know what they were.

"As a result, a lot of the play in the fourth quarter was understandably on the sloppy side. Maybe the last half of the third quarter wasn't too pleasing from a defensive standpoint."

So how good are the Huskers after wipeouts against Penn State and Wyoming?

"I don't think you could say we've played a real great football team yet. I think Wyoming's going to win a lot of games in their conference and has a chance to be a decent football team, and I still think Penn State will probably pull out of it and be fairly good, but obviously the Cincinnati score (Cincinnati 14, Penn State 3) doesn't lend itself to making us world beaters. So I really don't know how good we are.

"The things I think we probably improved on were the turnover factor — we only had one turnover against Penn State where we had potentially five or six, and (against Wyoming) we didn't have the ball on the ground as much — and we had very few major penalties. And so, I think particularly when the game was still in doubt, in some ways, we really played pretty well."

Referring to his insertion of third-team quarterback ahead of backup Nate Mason with the score 28-0 in the second quarter, Osborne said, "We just did that because we wanted to get Craig a little bit of playing time before the game was over. I'd like to get him ready to play next year. It's Turner (Gill), and Nate and Craig in that order. It's kind of rare that the top two quarterbacks are seniors. We want to get Craig some playing time, but we'll just play it by ear, game by game. I can't sabotage Nate; Nate deserves to play."

Referring to Minnesota, this week's opponent in Minneapolis, he said, "I think our preparation will be probably more similar to Penn State's. We'll have to get ready for basically a throwing game. I'm sure they'll have good players and they'll prepare hard and play hard. It will be a 95 percent Minnesota crowd up there. So it won't be the easiest playing circumstances.

"Playing indoors and playing at night shouldn't be a factor. Most of Wyoming's passing (success) was when we were blitzing and we were man-to-man and we just didn't get there. It's kind of hard to blitz the wishbone. They didn't just move the ball down the field throwing on us, either.

"We probably legitimately gave up 10 points when they were going against our better people. I don't know what will happen. They (Gophers) might throw for 500 yards on us. It's possible. They might beat us. They could."

Osborne Announces TV Network

An 18-station television network stretching from coast to coast is carrying the Husker football weekly highlights program, "Nebraska Football 1983," Coach Tom Osborne has announced.

"The recruiting advantages of a show like this are tremendous, and I'm sure the alumni and fans will be pleased," Osborne said.

Injury Report

"Monster Mike McCashland's deep thigh bruise was considered most serious.

"Linebacker Mike Daum suffered a pinched nerve in his shoulder, guard Harry Grimmering was limping with a calf bruise, monster Dan Casterline sprained an ankle and wingback Irving Fryar received treatment for a stiff neck.

"If any of them is going to miss any practice time, it would be McCashland," Trainer Jerry Weber said. "So, really, we're doing real well so far."

(25) scores
Nebraska's se-
touchdown.

'In the second half, they took it right to us. They (Wyoming) never quit, whether it was 0-0 or 42-3.' Dave Burke.

Dave Schneider, kicker — Soph was 5 x 5 on PAT kicks in home debut. "This was a lot more thrilling than the Penn State Game, all that red behind the goal posts, just going out the tunnel and having people touch you just to touch you. My goal was just to dress for games. I guess I'm doing a little more than that. I wasn't perfect in my book — I made some technical mistakes — but it is in the scorebook. I'm having fun."

Scott Livingston, punter-kicker — Junior college transfer averaged 49.7 on three punts and consistently kicked off into the end zone. "It felt to me like I was playing in my own backyard. I didn't even notice anybody out there. I'm sure if it had been a closer game, it would have made a difference and there would have been a lot more excitement. My goal is to keep the other team inside its 20-yard line so they have to go 80 yards. That's my job. I think I did okay."

"I'm a game player. I haven't done that well in practices, but it seems like I have a lot more hang time and kick farther in games. It never enters my mind that I might drop the ball."

Dave Burke, cornerback — He was in when Wyoming drove 80 yards against the No. 1 defense in the third quarter and crashed in to stop the run when Brad Baumberger lofted a 1-yard TD pass to split end Jay Novacek. "We were in a defense we call 'goal line attack.'" There's no coverage on the split end. I was pinching down. The whole secondary is coming. It's a gamble, and we lost. If they'd run a pitch, we'd have stuffed them."

"Wyoming passed pretty well and adjusted to us in the second half real well. They knew we were going to come with pressure, and their coaching staff did a good job of adjusting their blocking schemes to our defenses. In the second half, they took it right to us. They never quit, whether it was 0-0 or 42-3."

Irving Fryar, wingback — His apparent 81-yard touchdown reception on the second play was held to 33 yards when he stepped out of bounds, but he later caught a 49-yard touchdown pass from Turner Gill. "I didn't think I was anywhere near the sideline. After I ran all that way to the end zone, I was so tired I thought, 'Golly, what do I have to do to score?' But I figured I'd just have to go back and do it all over again. I knew we would pull it off eventually."

"That's what we wanted to do, get out and score points early and let the rest of the guys play."

Scott Strasburger, defensive end — His blind-side sack caused a fumble that was recovered by middle guard Ken Graeber at the Cowboy 9 and set up the third touchdown. "I gave Graeber a bad time. He almost caught the ball in the air and scored. Last year, against Oklahoma when I intercepted, I needed one block out of him on the quarterback to score. I gave him his chance. He said, 'Next time, hold the quarterback, and I'll take the handoff.' "

Ken Graeber, middle guard — "We joked about it. The ball popped up. I had my hands on it. I lost it. We scored anyway, but for a defensive lineman, it's once in a career. I guess I blew my chance. What the heck."

Mike Knox, linebacker — He had his second interception in two games after five tips and no interceptions last year. "The work is paying off. I don't know if I'm on a roll or if it's luck. I didn't want them to score, but we just didn't have the intensity the second half."

"They did some things that confused us, and part of the time, we had some kids in there who didn't know how to play the wishbone. Wyoming had a bunch of farm kids and good coaches. They learn on the farm that if you want anything in life, you have to work for it. There were no quitters on that team."

Mike Rozier, I-back — He became Nebraska's all-time leading rusher with 191 yards on 19 carries and scored four touchdowns. "Four touchdowns and 191 yards; that's a lot of blocking. I feel good about the record, but that's my job. Maybe it'll mean more to me when I'm older, but all I'm concerned about now is winning."

"I'm just an average guy doing the best I can every time I touch the ball. I suppose all the publicity comes with the program, but I'd just as soon have the offensive linemen answering all the questions."

"Now, I'm not the best running back in America...maybe one of the best. I don't think about the Heisman Trophy. The national championship would be my Heisman, the team's Heisman."

Mark Schellen, fullback — He scored on runs of 11 and 1 yard but his non-scoring 65-yarder pleased him most. "That's the first time I ever got open where I was all by myself. I didn't like to get run down from behind, but their defensive backs are quick. We have too many guys who can break it. It would be depressing to go the whole day on defense against our offense. There are too many ways to hurt you."

Turner Gill, quarterback — He completed 9 of 13 passes for 186 yards, including a 49-yard touchdown to Fryar. "I just have to put it out there and throw into an area. The receivers are so fast, they can get it."

Wyoming coach Al Kincaid — "I don't know if anyone can stop Nebraska. The only way to stop them from scoring is to keep the ball away from them, and we didn't do that the first half. They're more concerned about a national championship than a Heisman Trophy winner. To me, it looked like all those guys in red were Heisman Trophy candidates on offense."

The Way We See It

'Nebraska 62, Minnesota 10' — Huskers Illustrated.

The Huskers Say...

Huskers Illustrated

"Minnesota has had eight seasons to catch its breath and lick its wounds after its last experience with Nebraska. The Gophers tried Bob Devaney and Tom Osborne teams eight straight times and were licked 8-0 in the record books and 287-52 on the scoreboard before ending the relationship after the 1974 trip to Lincoln. The last three meetings went 49-0, 48-7, 54-0.

"Some things have changed, some have not. The game will be played in the Hubert H. Humphrey indoor park, which will be new to Nebraskans. The Gophers, Smokey Joe Salem's fifth crew, is undefeated. Last year's Minnesotans lost their last eight games.

"It might be stretching it a tad to say Minnesota is on a roll, however. The opening victim was Rice, which lost all 11 last year and raised its losing skein to 14 games in the opening loss to the Gophers, who pulled it out in the last quarter, 21-17.

"Salem's team is young and inexperienced. Only four seniors dot the top 22, and only one is on the second units. Nine freshmen are among the top 44. The lines are especially young, which is critical against Nebraska.

"Where Minnesota might stand a chance is in the passing game, which is what it does best under California juco grad Greg Murphy. If Nebraska has shown any vulnerability in its first two games, it has been in pass offense.

"The Gophers also have a breakaway artist in Tony Hunter, the leading rusher of 1982, who is back after quitting last spring. But the Huskers should pad their fat stats in this one. Nebraska 62, Minnesota 10."

Bill Fox, UPI

Minneapolis, Minn.

"The Gophers are likely to get whipped badly by Nebraska. They're coming off a season where they had eight losses. Most supporters hope the Gophers can hold their own, but they feel they'll get a real shellacking.

"Nebraska has a lot of veterans, and Minnesota has a lot of new people. Their strengths, especially at quarterback, have graduated, plus they have a completely new set of assistants this season. Nebraska 30, Minnesota 7."

Dick Janda, Sports Dir.

KOLN-TV, Lincoln, Ne.

"Some publications say Minnesota could be the worst college football team in the country, and almost everyone picks them to finish last in the Big 10.

"So let's look for Nebraska's second victory in two tries in indoor stadiums. Seven touchdowns and a field goal will make it Nebraska 52, Minnesota 0."

Irv Mussberger

Duluth Herald and News Tribune

"I think it's going to be a long day for the Gophers. That's about as nice as I can put it.

"Specifically, Nebraska will dominate them in the kicking game, on the offensive and defensive lines, in the offensive and defensive backfields and on the special teams.

"I don't think the game's on the board, is it? Nebraska 42, Minnesota 3."

Dennis Drag

WCCO-TV, Minneapolis, Minn.

"They (Minnesota) have such a lack of depth defensively. They lost more lettermen (35) than anyone else in the Big 10 to graduation. That ought to give you a pretty good indication of the situation there.

"Minnesota just doesn't have the horses. Nebraska 56, Minnesota 7."

Randy York

Lincoln Journal-Star

"If there's a 'name that score' situation on this year's schedule, this is the best. In eight Big 10 conference games last year, Minnesota never gave up less than 21 points."

"If Northwestern can score 31 against the Gophers last year, it doesn't take much imagination to guess how many points the Huskers can score this year.

"This could be embarrassing. Bob Devaney will work the color commentary for Omaha's KETV. Some time in the second half, he may have to resort to some old Wyoming stories. Nebraska 52, Minnesota 7."

Steve Sinclair

Omaha World Herald

"It's too bad this game isn't Nebraska against the Minnesota Vikings. It would be closer. Jarvis Redwine doesn't start for the Vikings. He wouldn't start for the Cornhuskers, either.

"The temptation is to forecast a shutout, but the Gophers will capitalize on a break to score. Nebraska 48, Minnesota 7."

Don Gill

KLIN Radio, Lincoln, Ne.

"Penthouse magazine has Minnesota the worst college football team in America. I don't think they're quite that bad, but the Huskers should be able to score at will. Nebraska 49, Minnesota 3."
